

Rebecca Kool

inspires writers, encourages readers and engages audiences of all ages. Rebecca speaks about her best-selling first book, Fly Catcher Boy, and how true-life experiences led her to write a bi-lingual book, in English and Japanese, for children.

Her six years living and teaching in Japan provides a wealth of anecdotes and riveting stories about working and traveling in Asia.

Visit Rebecca online at www.rebeccakool.com

About the presentation

Rebecca delivers a lively presentation for Grades K-4, including:

- an interactive reading performed in “kamishibai (Japanese old-style storytelling)
- tales of her own adventures
- a special game
- tips on writing and getting published
- coloring pages, prizes and lots of laughs!

What others say about Rebecca’s presentations:

“Rebecca is a gracious, animated storyteller. Her enthusiasm for the story and Japanese culture and language is contagious.”

-Cindi Mercer, Coordinator, Children’s Programs, Alexander Neighborhood House, Surrey, B.C.

“Rebecca’s readings and presentations never fail to entertain. Everyone will be enthralled.”

*-Neil McKinnon, Author
Tuckahoe Slidebottle, Thistledown Press, Canada*

“Rebecca Kool is a marvelous storyteller. She will lure children of all ages into the story and keep them enthralled until the very last page.”

*-Dru Pearson, Author
Retire in Mexico and Mexico Magic*

“Since Rebecca’s visit we have noticed a new interest in books in our library. She’s delightful.”

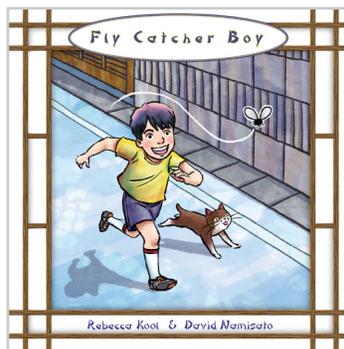

*-Stephanie Mackie, Head Librarian,
St. Mark’s Church*

About the book: Fly Catcher Boy

ISBN 978-1-926691-03-9

Kenji is afraid of thunder. Alone in the house one stormy night, Kenji is startled by a noise outside. He finds a wet, miserable cat sitting on the doorstep and brings him inside to warmth and safety. After introductions to his grandmother the next morning, Kenji and his new friend set off on adventures in their small Japanese town.

Written in English with Japanese words and expressions throughout the text, Fly Catcher Boy provides readers with a window into Japanese language and culture.

The pronunciation glossary ensures that readers will be able to pronounce and understand the Japanese words they are learning throughout the story.

To book a presentation

To book, or for more information, please email: info@rebeccakool.com or use the contact form on Rebecca’s website at www.rebeccakool.com